Description: This nature preserve protects mesic upland woodlands, a bog, and portions of lakeshore along Lake Everett and is located in Indiana's Northern Lakes Natural Region. This Nature Preserve is one of the sites listed in Alton Lindsey's 'Natural Areas of Indiana and Their Preservation'. It consists of 1,000+ feet of Lake Everett shoreline, the county's only natural lake, mesic woodlands with peaty soils across rolling topography and a 2 acre bog. This northern muckland woodland is also home to a healthy population of cinnamon ferns that reach 5 feet in height.
