

POKAGON STATE PARK

450 Lane 100 Lake James • Angola, IN 46703 • (260) 833-2012
1,260 acres Established 1925

Beechwood Nature Preserve - Along the east edge of the park, Trail 8 crosses the border and enters the 89-acre, Beechwood Nature Preserve, a unit of the ACRES Land Trust. A 1.5-mile loop continues over rolling hills of old meadows now sporting thickets of gray dogwoods and remnants of an old apple orchard. From the loop, a short section of the trail continues to the Beechwood parking lot at State Road 127. A boardwalk traverses a lowland swamp, featuring rare yellow birch, red maple, blue beech and skunk cabbage.

AN ICE AGE LEGACY

During an age when the climate was approximately 10 degrees cooler, more snow fell in the winter than melted in the summer. As an accumulation piled up over thousands of years, it formed an ice sheet that flowed from Canada over northern Indiana. That glacier began melting 10,000 to 15,000 years ago. The landscape we enjoy today resulted.

That glacier was the last one of four to cover Indiana and has been named the "Wisconsin." The Saginaw lobe of this massive, one-mile thick, ice flow was the last to leave a lasting impression on the face of the lands of Pokagon State Park.

While walking on many of the park trails, you will notice piles of rocks, and individual rocks, that seemingly came from nowhere. These are known as glacial erratics. They are part of the total mass of earth brought down from the north, which is known as glacial debris or glacial till.

There are more lakes in Steuben County than in any other county in the state. All are natural and all were formed from the massive earth moving and gouging glaciers. Where sunken blocks of ice broke away as the glaciers melted, sit today's kettle-hole lakes. Lake Lonidaw on Trail 3 is a perfect example.

The variations of plant and animal species, and the topography that they cover, is typical of glaciated regions. For this reason, Pokagon, in many ways, resembles parks you may expect to find farther north. Although relatively small, Pokagon has a tremendous variety of ecotypes, including lakes, marshes, fens, swamps, deciduous woodlands, pine groves, old fields, and meadowlands. Take time to explore and enjoy this ice age legacy.

THIS IS YOUR PARK

Visitors shall observe the rules, which are designed to fulfill the purpose for which state parks were established, namely, to preserve a primitive landscape in its natural condition for the public's use and enjoyment.

DESCRIPTION OF HIKING TRAILS

TRAIL & DESCRIPTION	DISTANCE	DIFFICULTY
Trail 1	2 miles	Moderate
Trail from Inn past Nature Center to Apple Orchard picnic area through hardwood forest. Crosses road at bridge, continues as the bicycle trail to saddle barn and back to Inn. A good trail for woodland birds and spring flowers.
Trail 2	2.2 mile	Moderate
Begins on main park road near gatehouse, goes through rolling land, past Spring Shelter, through hardwood forest. Terminates at Campground 1.
Trail 3	2.2 miles	Moderate
Interesting trail leading through Potawatomi Nature Preserve, with varied habitats of marsh land, deep hardwood forests, pines and sand hills; panoramic view of area from trail overlook at Hell's Point. Returns to Potawatomi Inn.
Trail 4	1.4 miles	Easy
Begins near gatehouse (with Trail 2) and extends to Trail 5 through campgrounds near amphitheatre. A variety of habitats is offered in pine trees, hardwood forest and rolling land.
Trail 5	.7 miles	Easy
Begins near Campground 1 and goes past Group Camp to beach; passes through deep woods; a good trail to observe birds and spring flowers.
Trail 6	.7 miles	Moderate
Trail through primitive area, including swamp. Begins and ends on Trail 3. A good trail for observing marshland plants and animals.
Trail 7-Bluebird Hills	1.8 miles	Moderate
The trail starts just below Hell's Point on Trail 3 and makes a large loop before returning to the starting point. This is mostly open, rolling hills. Grasslands support native prairie plants typical of the land before it was farmed. Restored wetlands among the hills provide homes for many species that prefer this habitat.
Trail 8	1 mile	Moderate
Our newest trail leaves Trail 3 just west of Hell's Point and heads north, crosses a county road, and traverses open, rolling hills, which are being managed to return to meadowlands. Future plans will connect trail to the nearby ACRES Land Trust Beechwood Nature Preserve.
Trail 9	1.7 miles	Rugged
Leaves Trail 3 and goes east through wooded swamps and young forests. Touches the former site of the "Pokagon Motel" on State Road 127, near I-69, passes by Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC)-built stone dams, and returns to Trail 3.

PLEASE STAY ON MARKED TRAILS.

INDIANA

POKAGON STATE PARK

On the shores of Lake James and Snow Lake, amid the rolling hills of Indiana's lake country, Pokagon State Park offers unexcelled opportunities for outdoor recreation during all seasons. In a region where the Potawatomi ruled for many years, the park takes its name "Pokagon" from their last two most notable leaders, Leopold and Simon Pokagon (father and son). By treaty, the Potawatomi transferred to the federal government approximately 1 million acres of land, including the present site of Chicago, at the price of three cents an acre.

The lakes form an attractive background for Pokagon, offering excellent fishing, boating and swimming throughout the summer, and a perfect setting for many winter sports. There are two beaches, 13.7 miles of trails, and ample opportunities to enjoy lake shores, wooded hills, wetlands and open meadows.
